OUR INSPIRATIONS

From the Desk of

Dr. Deepak Jain

Director-General, Federation of Indian Industry

The new Parliament was dedicated to the nation last month. India is the largest democracy and indeed one of the largest economies in the world. It currently holds the position as the fifth-largest economy by nominal GDP and the third-largest economy by purchasing power parity (PPP) according to the International Monetary Fund (IMF) data as of 2021. How can we be the largest economy? India's economic growth has been driven by a large and diverse population, a robust service sector, a growing middle class, and significant contributions from industries such as information technology, pharmaceuticals, and manufacturing. The size of an economy is determined by factors such as gross domestic product (GDP), which measures the total value of goods and services produced within a country's borders. The largest human power needs to be groomed to make it all productive for the economy. India's democratic system, with its large population and vibrant political participation, can contribute to economic growth by ensuring political stability, providing a platform for policy-making, and fostering innovation and entrepreneurship. Let us together make India the largest economy of the world also.

India, Nepal and Bangladesh have finalised the draft of a tripartite power trade agreement, which would help to forge greater energy connectivity across India's neighbourhood. The proposed pact, the first of its kind, is expected to be signed in the coming months. According to reports, the agreement will also reduce the dependence of neighbouring countries on China.

Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Wednesday said prudent fiscal management by the government during the Covid pandemic saved India from becoming the "most indebted nation". # ADOPT GITA-BASED NEEDONOMICS FOR ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION IN BHARAT

Prof. M.M. Goel

Former Vice-Chancellor superannuated from Kurukshetra University, Kurukshetra .

Adopt Gita-based Needonomics for Environmental Protection in Bharat Professor M. M. Goel Former Vice Chancellor and Founder Needonomics School of Thought, Kurukshetra To commemorate World Environment Day (WED) on June 5 not merely as an annual ritual with lip service, we must understand that environment and climate change in the world including India falls in the domain of Gita-based Needonomics (economics of needs) which is essential for sustainable development. It is pertinent to mention that air pollution can reduce the life expectancy of Indians by nine years. It has to be noted that plastic pollution in Bharat is enhancing air pollution. The plastic waste is called plastic pollution which is expanding in Urban India. The negative effects of plastic pollution are visible on earth, water and air. We must search “solutions to plastic pollution” which is the theme of WED 2023 for drawing attention of the public at large. We must stop using single use plastic bags in urban areas as positive attitude to control environmental pollution in Bharat to be made Swarnim towards 2047. The Government must ban the production of single use plastic bags. We can live plastic free life to be called needo-life to survive, exist and excel in the global economy. To get a better perspective of environment scenario in Bharat, we must read and reread the 8th e-book “State of India’s Environment 2023” from Centre for Science and Environment. We can dive deeper into the real environmental issues for getting a better perspective on environmental protection in Bharat by understanding the latest data as on March 31, 2023. To prove the relevance of gita-based needonomics for environmental protection in Bharat is the objective of this article. To protect the environment, we have to adopt needonomics school of thought with precautions from growth beyond limits. We need to treat the dynamics of an environment as water which search for its own profit for everyone today for safe tomorrow to ensure intra-generation and intergenerational equity. ABC of Needonomics as accuracy, brevity and clarity have to be understood, analysed, interpreted and adapted for the solution of environmental problems including plastic pollution in society as consumers, producers, distributors and traders. To ensure transparency, quickness and accountability, the manpower in pollution prevention activities must be trained to work under a pressure cooker environment as most of the women do in the kitchen for the great cause with honesty and integrity. The environment is the summation of all conditions and influences that affect the development and life of organisms. Physical (non-living) and biological (living) environments are the two sides of the same coin (human environment) and both interact with each other. A change in the physical environment brings a change in the biological environment and vice versa. The environment is being affected by many factors and affects living beings. There is a continuous need to review and update the environmental protection activities at all levels as per the requirements of the time. We have to go a long way in environmental legislation to reach the highest standards in the prevention and control of the environment in every country like India. We need to understand the relationship management between nature and human beings in all aspects. To survive in present times of environmental awareness, every effort has to be made to recycle waste and use environmentally friendly technologies which are cost-effective in the real sense. Let environmental economics be taught to everyone. We have to boost Needo-financing at all levels of operation in the economy for protecting the environment. We have to keep away from the negative people who see problems in the solutions too and become part of the solutions team in the economy without any ifs and buts by remaining careful and useful Indians. To be simply good consumers, producers, distributors and traders in the present era, we have to adopt the principle of needonomics based on a spiritually guided materialism strategy flowing from the logo of LIC of India 'Yogakshemam Vahamyaham' (Your welfare is our responsibility) flowing from Gita. For saying no to the socio-economic problems caused by greedonomics (economics of greed) including the 'cobra effect' of debt (making solutions worsening the problem with unhappy consequences), corruption, terrorism, exploitation and discrimination, we have to adopt needonomics with Needo-consumption. To be richer than the wealthiest in a real sense, we have to be contented and say no more is needed. We have to be alert, aware and awake with vivek for ensuring a change in lifestyle based on needonomics with needolove (love for needs) and motivate people for protecting the environment. An economy can be made consumer friendly by adopting NAW (Need, Affordability and Worth) approach of marketing with a focus on the need-based priorities in choices of all kinds. To become the desired Indians as the stakeholders of the pollution free economy, we must become street SMART (simple, moral, action-oriented, responsive and transparent) with spiritual input flowing from the epics including Gita and Anu-Gita. The readers must note that in Mahabharata, Gita occurs in Parva no 6, while Anu-Gita occurs in Parva no 14 of the total 18 Parvas. Anu-Gita has 36 chapters (compared to 18 chapters in Gita) and 1040 sloka (compared to 700 sloka in Gita). Being needonomist, I believe that the road of desires with greed goes far away, but it is better that we take a turn to the street of needs and enjoy peace, progress and prosperity with needo-consumption, needo-saving, needo-investment for needo-development which is a sustainable lifestyle (pollution free) to be adopted as needo-lifestyle.

Happy World Environment Day!

The Gujarat International Finance Tec-City (GIFT City) IFSC will become fully operational on July 3, 2023. This means that all US dollar-denominated Nifty derivatives contracts will be exclusively traded on NSE IFSC. The migration of SGX Nifty derivatives to the NSE IFSC is a huge step forward for India. It will aid in attracting foreign investment into India, as well as improving the efficiency of the Indian financial system and making it more accessible to businesses and individuals. The article aims to highlight various benefits of this transition in detail.

The following are some of the advantages that the transfer of SGX Nifty derivatives to the NSE IFSC will bring to India:

- Rise in foreign investment: Foreign investment is likely to flow into India as a result of the transformation. This investment will aid in the growth of the Indian economy and the creation of new jobs.
- More efficiency in financial services: The move will offer a variety of financial services, including banking, insurance, and asset management. This will increase the efficacy and accessibility of India's financial system for enterprises and individuals.

- Trade Volume growth: The change will facilitate commerce between India and other nations. This will increase India's exports and imports and create employment in manufacturing and services.

- Improved infrastructure: The GIFT City IFSC is being constructed with infrastructure of the highest calibre, including roads, railways, airports, and communications. This infrastructure will attract businesses and individuals to the GIFT City IFSC and transform it into a centre of economic activity.

India has taken a significant stride forward with the transition of SGX Nifty derivatives to NSE IFSC. It will contribute to economic growth, employment creation, and an improvement in the standard of living for many individuals. In light of these developments, it becomes crucial to explore the background of SX Nifty.

SGX NIFTY BACKGROUND

SGX Nifty is a derivative of the Nifty 50 index, which is a market capitalization-weighted, free-float index of the top 50 companies listed on the National Stock Exchange of India. The SGX Nifty is a popular method for international investors to acquire exposure to the Indian stock market, as it is traded on the Singapore Exchange. Since its inception in 2000, the SGX Nifty has become one of the most actively traded derivatives contracts in the world. The contract is available for trading from 8:00 AM to 16:00 PM (Singapore Time), or 2:30 AM to 8:30 AM (Indian Standard Time). The contract quantity is 100 times the Nifty index, so a speculator who purchases one contract is essentially purchasing 100 Nifty index shares.

The benefits of GIFT Nifty trade are as follows:

- Reduced latency: The shift to GIFT City will decrease market latency for Nifty futures. This is due to the location of GIFT City in India, which is closer to the preponderance of Nifty futures traders than Singapore. Reduced latency will facilitate trading on the Nifty futures market, leading to increased trading volumes and volatility.
- Competition: Additionally, the relocation to GIFT City will increase competition on the Nifty futures market. For Nifty futures trading, the NSE GIFT exchange will compete with the Singapore Exchange (SGX). This competition should result in reduced fees and improved trading conditions for investors.
- Tax benefits: Certain tax advantages will be available to investors who trade Nifty futures on the NSE GIFT exchange. These advantages consist of a reduced Securities Transaction Tax (STT) and Dividend Distribution Tax (DDT) rate.
- More trading hours: The NSE GIFT exchange will offer extended trading hours for Nifty futures than the SGX. This will provide investors with greater trading and risk management flexibility.
- Direct access to Indian markets: On the NSE GIFT exchange, traders of Nifty futures will have direct access to Indian markets. This will enable them to trade Indian equities and other securities, providing diversification benefits.

The GIFT Nifty transaction is anticipated to have numerous advantages for investors. These advantages include reduced latency, increased competition, tax advantages, extended trading hours, and direct access to Indian markets.

JOURNEY IN DISCOVERING HIMSELF

Ms. Nidhi Behl Vats
FII Member
Founder, StoryofSouls

Kalidasa reached the village after travelling through the forest. While he was looking around for water to quench his thirst, he spotted an old woman who was drawing water from the well.

He went up to the old woman and asked her for water as he was thirsty. She agreed but her condition was, that hold he introduced himself to her.

Kalidasa was knowledgeable and a great scholar of his time. People knew him but he felt it was not important for an ordinary old woman to know about him. According to him, it was worthless to himself to her.

But as per the condition, he went ahead and told her that he was a traveler. The old woman instantly disagreed with him. In her knowledge, only the Sun and the Moon were two travelers, who keep travelling constantly. Because she did not agree with the answer he was asked the same question. By now Kalidasa was extremely thirsty and requested her to just treat him as a guest.

Well, even this time around she disagreed and said you cannot be a guest too. The only two guests she can think of, are youth and wealth.

Both are temporary and refuse to stay even if you plead with them a million times.

So for the old lady, Kalidasa was neither a traveler nor a guest.

She pressed upon the same question and with not much of an interest, he replied that he was a tolerant person.

Kalidasa was sure that this time the old lady would agree to his answer and give him water but to his surprise, she disagreed. For her, no one was more tolerant than the Earth and the trees, and this is easily agreeable because no matter how much you stamp or pelt the trees, they don't fail to nurture us.

Kalidasa had to face the same question once again and he had no option but to answer it patiently. But his thirst made him irritable. Kalidasa called himself a stubborn man. As expected the old lady disagreed with this too. She very politely told him, son, you are not stubborn too. She explained to him that the absolutely two stubborn personalities whom she can think of are our nails and hair. During our life span, we keep cutting them but they continue to grow back. So who else can be more stubborn than them?

Kalidasa had become very furious by now and to get rid of this question and answer round, he called himself the biggest fool. To this, the old lady smiled and said that the only two fools she can think of is the King who rules without having any capability or knowledge and a Minister who is a sycophant to such a king who showers useless praises on the King. The old lady wanted to know out of the two which fool is Kalidasa.

After all the disagreements, Kalidasa realized that he had been outsmarted by the old lady. He fell at her feet and apologised and begged forgiveness for being such an ignorant man who thought that he knew everything about himself. He was extremely ashamed of his ignorance and was awestruck of the humility of the old lady. Kalidasa touched her feet and when he got up he understood that she was Mata Saraswati, Goddess of Knowledge and Wisdom. She came to make him realize what he perceived about himself was not completely right. He was wise but to become a good human being it is important to be humble. His ego of knowing it all had overpowered his achievements. His education was buried under arrogance. Mata Sarawati wanted to show him his real side so she appeared as an old lady.

A true human being is not one who has too much knowledge but someone who is humble. No education or intellect is of use if we are overpowered by our ego.
